Minister of Health & Family Welfare Nagaland, P Paiwang Konyak today flagged off the National Mobile Medical Unit (MMU) for Zunheboto District at Directorate of Health & Family Welfare Kohima. A joint venture of Ministry of Health & Family and Government of Nagaland, the unit is funded by TATAAIG General Insurance Company Limited, under Corporate Social Responsibility. Speaking at the programme, Mr. Konyak said the Mobile Medical Unit is a beacon of hope for communities who have long awaited essential healthcare services. He said, as envisaged by the health Ministry, this initiative represents a collective resolve to bridge the healthcare gap and ensure that quality medical services reach every citizen, especially those people living in the most remote, difficult, under-served and unreachable areas. Mr Konyak, said, these mobile units will alleviate the need for long and arduous journeys to the nearest hospital, reducing delays in treatment and preventing the escalation of minor health issues into major medical concerns.

The Health Minister called upon all to reaffirm its commitment to a healthier, stronger and more inclusive India. Mr Konyak also announced that he will be touring various districts to review the health units.

Governor of Nagaland, La Ganesan today officially inaugurated the 40th edition of Nagaland Police Sports cum Duty Meet at the Armed Police Training Centre ground in Chumoukedima district. Addressing the program, Governor Ganesan commended the police personnel for their dedication to both their professional duties and sports, saying that their commitment as an inspiration to all. He emphasized that the event would not only showcase the physical abilities, temperament, and sporting spirit of the participants, but also demonstrate the qualities essential to upholding peace and justice in the state. La Ganesan said, the meet would provide an opportunity to strengthen unity, camaraderie, and shared joy, going beyond the daily responsibilities of the police forces. In his address, Director General of Police, Nagaland Rupin Sharma said the event is a celebration of the courage, strength, and dedication that each member of the Nagaland Police brings to their duty. Commending the Police athletes for their dedication, Mr. Sharma urged them to bring the same energy and spirit to their duties. Over 2,000 officers from 34 different units of the Nagaland Police will be participating in 12 different competitions including Shooting, Drill, Battlefield Physical Efficiency Test, Motor Transport, Scientific Aid to Investigation, Weapon Handling, Bugle, and Wireless.

Nagaland Advisor for Food & Civil Supply and Legal Metrology, K. Tokugha Sukhalu today said that traditions do not necessarily conflict with economic progress. Speaking at the Ahuna festival celebration of the Sumi community at Zunheboto district, Mr. Sukhalu said while some customs may change with time, the core values such as honesty, hard work, generosity, courage and community spirit should remain central to one's identity. He said, Nagaland has changed over the years, highlighting the growing competition for jobs and the need for higher qualifications. Stating that relying on shortcuts, like backdoor opportunities, would only leave the people lagging behind in a rapidly evolving society, the Advisor urged the younger generation to focus on education, as it remains the key to the future progress.
